Develop Your Leadership Potential, Inspiring People to Follow Your Lead

To achieve an organization's goals through the efforts of others, leaders engage in three main activities:

- Setting direction for the organization
- Inspiring others to work toward the direction
- Mobilizing the effective accomplishment of goals

"Leaders are found – and needed – at all levels in all kinds of organizations. No matter what kind of organization, group or leadership style, learning how personality type affects leadership will help you increase the capacity of your leaders to achieve organizational goals."

Adapted from: Introduction to Type® and Leadership (2008) by Sharon Lebovitz Richmond

Workshop Details

This workshop offers MBTI® certified practitioners a logical framework and practical tools to support individuals and organisations in developing effective and inspirational leaders. The focus of the workshop is to provide practitioners with type-related exercises, tools and insights which can be applied in leadership development programs.

Leadership Lens and Decision Making Models will be explored during the workshop.
